Penn-Roosevelt State Park
This 41-acre park is in an isolated area of the Seven Mountains region known as the Stone Creek Kettle. While this Centre County park is small in size, it is surrounded by an 80,000-acre block of Rothrock State Forest. Penn-Roosevelt is a good base for those seeking low-density recreation on this vast expanse of public land.

Directors
The park is easily reached from US 322, one-half mile east of Potter’s Mills (where US 322 changes from two to four lanes) turn south onto Crossfield Road and drive six miles to park. Or further east, turn south, (near the runaway truck ramp) onto Stone Creek Road and drive six miles to park. Penn-Roosevelt can also be reached from Greenwood Furnace State Park. Turn onto Broad Mountain Road at the park office. Follow the Penn-Roosevelt signs 12 miles to the park.

For a wider map of the area, obtain a copy of the Rothrock State Forest Public Use Map from Greenwood Furnace State Park or the Bureau of Forestry office in Huntingdon.
The roads to the park are not plowed in the winter.

Recreational Opportunities

PICKNICKING: A picnic area is on the west side of the lake. Picnic tables and a reservable picnic pavilion are available on the eastern side. Make reservations online or call toll-free 888-PA-PARKS (888-727-2757), 7 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday-Friday, to a Everett Food Service.

CAMPING: rustic sites, tents only
The 18 rustic campsites are for tents only. Some sites are walk-in for more in comfort. Drinking water and non-flush toilets are available. Due to the isolated location, Penn-Roosevelt provides an excellent opportunity to get away from noise and electric lights. Park rangers routinely patrol the park and camping fees are paid through a self-registration/payment system. Please keep food and fees in vehicles to protect them from wild animals.

HORSEBACK RIDING: Thickhead Mountain Road, leading west from Penn-Roosevelt State Park, is closed to motor vehicles and along with the connecting Detweiler Road, makes an excellent trail ride. Horse rentals are not provided.

HIKING: Many trails are on nearby state forest land. The Mid State Trail bisects the park and provides cross-country hiking in the Ridge and Valley Region of central Pennsylvania. This 171-mile ridge top route connects US 322 at Water Street, Huntingdon County and the West Run Trail in the Tioga State Forest north of Blackwell, Tioga County. This trail passes through a diversity of forested areas from newly regenerated forest stands to mature and old growth timber areas. Scenic vistas dot the trail, which passes through Thickhead Wild Area, and Bear Meadows and Detweiler Run natural areas.
The main trail is marked with orange blazes—two inches by six inches. Side trails are blue paint-blazed rectangles of the same size. Trail registers at a number of places along the trail and overnight camping is permitted anywhere along the trail except in the natural areas or within 200 feet of any forest road. Hikers wishing to overnight at Penn-Roosevelt State Park must use the camping area and pay the nightly fee. Hikers overnighting on the trail who wish to leave their vehicle overnight at the park should register with the Greenwood Furnace State Park office and use the main parking lot next to the CCC camp monument.

Mid State Trail is a rugged and demanding mountain-top trail, and hikers assume their own liability, realizing the difficulty and possible dangers involved. A detailed trail guide, including maps, is available for a small fee by writing to:

Winter Activities

Cross-country skiing is permitted. Snowmobiling commences the day after the close of deer season in December. Many miles of surrounding state forest roads are open for joint-use by snowmobiles and licensed motor vehicles.
The roads to the park are not maintained in the winter months so access to the park may not be possible.

Trash Disposal and Recycling
Penn-Roosevelt State Park participates in a carry-in/carry-out trash disposal program for small parks. There are no trash collection or recycling facilities. Visitors are asked to limit the amount of disposable items brought to the park and to take home all trash, garbage and recyclables. Campers should carefully burn any paper waste in their campfire, but please do not burn foil, glass, cans, plastics or food waste.

History
At the turn of the 20th century, large railroad logging operations were in progress in the Seven Mountains area with the hilltops and hollows receiving a “lumberman’s shave” typical of the day. During the summer, Rechley Brothers, a logging company, ran a 35-mile Sunday excursion train carrying up to 210 passengers, mostly from Lewistown. The trip began at Milroy, traveled to Poe Mills, to Thickhead Mountain Road, to Thickhead Wild Area near Stone Creek, and back to Milroy by way of Laurel Creek. One of the highest climbs was at Stone Gap, just south of the main park area.

These logging company properties were later sold to the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, forming the bulk of the Rothrock State Forest. Many of the railroad grades were later used as a base for the state forest roads. Observant visitors can still find some of the grades.

Penn-Roosevelt State Park, did not exist until June 5, 1933, when members of the Civilian Conservation Corps (CCC) Company 361 arrived to set up a work camp during the height of the Great Depression. The camp at Penn-Roosevelt was first known as Camp S-62, Stone Creek Kettle. The CCC of the 1930s was segregated and the camp at Stone Creek Kettle was one of 28 “Colored” camps in Pennsylvania.

Camping permits lived at the camp and constructed recreational facilities, including a 195-foot log-cabin that has since been stone-floored. They also built many of the surrounding forestry roads and trails. Two fireplaces, a unique stone bake oven and other ruins of the camp can still be found.
For many years, Penn-Roosevelt was a state forest picnic area. In 1983, it was officially designated as Penn-Roosevelt State Park.

Wildlife Watching
Wildlife is abundant in the area. The alert observer may see white-tailed deer, black bear, wild turkey and many species of small game. Due to the small acreage, Penn-Roosevelt State Park is closed to hunting. However, the surrounding Rothrock State Forest is open to hunting. The camping area makes an excellent base for a fall hunting trip. Feeding wild animals such as hours, opossums and skunks is prohibited. When wildlife loses its fear of people, dangerous situations can result.

WATER RESOURCES: The small lake at the confluence of Saasaffax Run and Standing Stone Creek is not stocked, but there are wild native brook trout. The stream below the dam is stocked in the spring. Wading is permitted in the lake and stream; swimming is not. On quiet evenings, muskrats can be seen on the lake and an occasional duck, goose or egret visits from time to time. Trapping is prohibited.

Access for People with Disabilities
This symbol indicates facilities and activities that are Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA) accessible for people with disabilities. This publication text is available in alternative formats.
If you need an accommodation to participate in park activities due to a disability, please contact the park you plan to visit.

Protect and Preserve Our Parks
Please make your visit safe and enjoyable. Obey all posted rules and regulations and respect fellow visitors and the resources of the park.
• Be prepared and bring the proper equipment. Natural areas may possess hazards. Your personal safety and that of your family are your responsibility.
• Alcoholic beverages are prohibited.
• Please camp only in designated areas and try to minimize your impact on the campsite.
• Firewood Admiralty: Firewood may contain non-native insects and plant diseases. Bringing firewood into the park from other areas may accidentally spread pest insects and diseases that threaten park resources and our forests. Campers should use local firewood. Do not take wood home and do not leave firewood. Burn it!
• Prevent forest fires by having a fire in proper facilities and properly disposing of hot coals. Do not leave a fire unattended.
• Because uncontrolled pets may chase wildlife or frighten visitors, pets must be controlled and attended at all times and on a leash, caged or crated.
• Do your part to keep wildlife wild! Enjoy wildlife from a safe distance and do not feed or approach wild animals.
